Bottled Water
When will residents have clean water again?

Privitization

For the typical household, privately owned
water utility service costs 59% more than public water service —
about $185
each year.

Privitization results in:

- Loss of Control.
- Loss of public input.
- Loss of transparency.
- For profit, not public interest.
- Cherry picking service areas.
- Rate Increases.
- Service Problems.
- Loss of one in three water jobs.
- Privatization can allow systems to deteriorate.

In 2011, the City of Grand Rapids considered privatizing its water. Thankfully, Mayor Heartwell declined.

Take action:

1. Ensure that our tap water is safe to drink and bathe in. This includes employing more reliable testing measures for lead content.

Take action:

2. Reconsider fluoridating our water supply as fluoride has been associated with health risks. Let people choose for themselves whether or not to ingest fluoride.

Take action:

3. Decline from considering privatizing our municipal water supplies.

Take action:

4. Call for the end of giving Michigan's water away to Nestle and other bottled water corporations.

Take action:

5. Stop cutting off water service to households with delinquent water bills and cease from using liens from unpaid water bills as a means of seizing property from homeowners.
